

In Your Smallest Pocket

You'll Find The Unexpected

This Perfect Disconnect

We measure ourselves by our intention knowing we mean no harm

We measure others by their impact
- the harm they are causing us

This perfect disconnect
this dividing rift means we drift even further apart

Can we bear to hear the impact we have on others irrespective of our intent?
Holding quietly our dearly held excuses and explanations

Can we listen to their intent no matter how hurt or wronged we may feel

Can we judge others how we judge ourselves Can we connect this disconnect by walking across the bridge between intention and impact

Jane O'Shea

wordremedies.com